Doxycycline hydrochloride market dynamics show that mainstream factories have resumed quotation one after another. Previously, the product experienced a price restriction period of more than two months, and the price did not rise as usual. At present, the market price stabilized near about 42.5usd. As the end of the year approaches, short-term demand is expected to gradually pick up. Accordingly, it is speculated that subsequent market prices may continue to experience oscillating adjustments and show a downward trend.

FOOD ADDITIVE

04

In response to the recent decline in performance and the development of phytomass business. JiaHe responded in an interview with a reporter from the New Beijing News that the decline in the company's first-half net profit was mainly due to a decrease in sales revenue and an increase in selling expenses. The increase in selling expenses is mainly attributed to the development of the C-end product market, the expansion of the relevant personnel team, also the increase in the company's promotional expenses.
